Biggest Drive Ever. The biggest log drive that ever swept down the Connecticut since the first ax-armed lumberman invaded the virgin forests of New England, which was started April 21, is now slowly coming down the river. Last week the drive passed Wells River. There may be other log drives in the future, but none like that which started April 21

the greatest of them all. 300 miles from the head waters of the Connecticut in the wild country along the canadian border, to the mills of the Connecticut Valley Lumber Co. at Mt. Tom, Mass, 585,445 brown logs will race on the longest drive in the United States. Of last winter's record cut, 10,000,000 feet will go into pulp wood in this north country; 4,000,000 feet are to be manufactured into lumber in a mill and the remaining 45,000,000 will be in the big drive, the longest in the United States and the biggost in the history of the river. In the old days when Michigan was the lumber king's paradise, there were occasional drives of 35,000,000 and 40,000,-000 was a bumper crop, yet the long-est drive was scarcely half so long as Donald J. McDonald, the company's northern manager, is running the drive, with Tom Van Dyke of the family of the New England lumber barons, Mr. McDonald's father was one of those who carried out a fortune from the forests of the Northwest, and it that rugged school learned the trade. Tom Van Dyke is a brother of George Van Dyke, former president of the company, who lost his life while bossing the drive of 1909. J. J. Phelan, the Boston financier, is now president, and to his efforts is due the credit for the big drive of senson-a record for the Connectiont. the oldest rivermen say that will never be broken.
